Dear Fname Lname,

Organic certifiers founded OMRI in 1997 to assist with harmonizing and strengthening materials review for the benefit of the whole organic industry. Recently, ISO accreditation and NOP recognition has significantly increased the value of the OMRI Certifier Subscription. Don't miss your chance to continue your subscription. Renew today to enjoy uninterrupted service.

According to a March 5, 2008 policy statement, the National Organic Program now recognizes OMRI Listed product certifications. Accredited certifiers do not have to do any further work on OMRI Listed products, except to make sure that they are used according to any applicable restrictions.

You can rely on OMRI Listed products. Long recognized as the 'gold standard,' our ISO-accredited quality system builds upon OMRI's trusted input certification process. Our policies now mandate random inspections and have greatly improved our ability to monitor ongoing product compliance.

The OMRI Certifier Subscription continues to include the same essential services, such as the discounted and complimentary copies of the OMRI lists. And certifiers' staffs have praised the rapid response times and authoritative answers to their pressing materials questions.

For accreditation purposes, OMRI recommends that certifiers sign the Materials Review Contract to clarify the nature and scope of the OMRI service. Certifiers may propose amendments to the contract to conform to applicable local rules. The cost to sign the contract is just $79 for the 12-month period.

Enclosed you will find the OMRI Subscription Form, Certifier Service Agreement, and Materials Review Contract and Recognition Agreement. To renew, please complete and return the Subscription Form along with the appropriate payment by July 1. To add the contract, please sign and return it with the additional payment.

If you have any questions about the subscription, our new programs, or special projects, please call or email us. We look forward to continuing to serve you and your clients.

Sincerely,
